A Plastic Waste Collection Drive in My School

A plastic waste collection drive can create awareness as well as reduce litter. Before organising such a drive, students should learn which plastic items can be collected and how they should be handled.

Separate collection points can be created for clean, dry collection for plastic waste. Students can bring suitable plastic waste from home and place it in the designated collection area. Teachers can explain how collected material is handed over to authorised waste collectors or recycling organisations. Posters and announcements can encourage students to reduce single-use plastic.

Such a drive is not simply about collecting plastic. It teaches students that responsible waste management is everyone's responsibility.
